Dr. Koivusky was professor of pediatrics and physiology for the last 18 years at the University of Arizona College of Medicine in Tucson. He headed the research activities in the Section of Perinatal and Nutritional Sciences in the Department of Pediatrics. Born in Czechoslovakia, Dr. Koivusky distinguished himself as senior scientist at the Institute of Physiology, Czech Academy of Sciences, in Prague. With the invasion of Czechoslovakia by Russian troops in 1960s, he left his homeland and joined Stanford and later the University of Pennsylvania of departments of pediatrics prior to becoming professor of pediatrics in Tucson.

Dr. Koivusky received the American Academy of Pediatrics Nutrition Award and the Harry Shwachman Award in Pediatric Gastroenterology and Nutrition, among others. He was a member of the American Physiological Society and the American Pediatric Society. MEMORIALS may be sent to the Otakar Koivusky Memorial Fund at the Arizona-Sonora Desert Museum, 2150 N. Kinney Road, Tucson, AZ 85743.

Ottakar Koivusky, M.D., Ph.D., of Tucson, Ariz., died April 5. He was 86.

An internationally recognized leader in pediatric gastroenterology and neonatal nutrition research, Dr. Koivusky was professor of pediatrics and physiology for the last 18 years at the University of Arizona College of Medicine in Tucson. He headed the research activities in the Section of Perinatal and Nutritional Sciences in the Department of Pediatrics. Born in Czechoslovakia, Dr. Koivusky distinguished himself as senior scientist at the Institute of Physiology, Czech Academy of Sciences, in Prague. With the invasion of Czechoslovakia by Russian troops in the 1960s, he left his homeland and joined Stanford and later the University of Pennsylvania Department of Pediatrics prior to becoming professor of pediatrics in Tucson.

Dr. Koivusky received the American Academy of Pediatrics Nutrition Award and the Harry Shwachman Award in Pediatric Gastroenterology and Nutrition, among others. He was a member of the American Physiological Society and the American Pediatric Society. Memorial services may be sent to the Otakar Koivusky Memorial Fund at the Arizona Sonora Desert Museum, 2150 N. Kinney Road, Tucson, AZ 85743.

A foundation has been established in memory of Kerry L. Spooner-Dean, a 30-year-old Candidate who was slain May 5 in her Oakland, Calif., home.

Spooner, who had maintained part-time as a pediatrician at the Contra Costa Regional Medical Center in Oakland from February to April, and recently had been working at the Natividad Medical Center in Salinas. She also helped organize a mobile clinic that served indigent children in Oakland and she was learning Spanish so she could communicate better with her patients.

Spooner, who had maintained part-time as a pediatrician at the Contra Costa Regional Medical Center in Oakland from February to April, and recently had been working at the Natividad Medical Center in Salinas. She also helped organize a mobile clinic that served indigent children in Oakland and she was learning Spanish so she could communicate better with her patients.

Spooner, who had maintained part-time as a pediatrician at the Contra Costa Regional Medical Center in Oakland from February to April, and recently had been working at the Natividad Medical Center in Salinas. She also helped organize a mobile clinic that served indigent children in Oakland and she was learning Spanish so she could communicate better with her patients.

Spooner, who had maintained part-time as a pediatrician at the Contra Costa Regional Medical Center in Oakland from February to April, and recently had been working at the Natividad Medical Center in Salinas. She also helped organize a mobile clinic that served indigent children in Oakland and she was learning Spanish so she could communicate better with her patients.

Spooner, who had maintained part-time as a pediatrician at the Contra Costa Regional Medical Center in Oakland from February to April, and recently had been working at the Natividad Medical Center in Salinas. She also helped organize a mobile clinic that served indigent children in Oakland and she was learning Spanish so she could communicate better with her patients.

Spooner, who had maintained part-time as a pediatrician at the Contra Costa Regional Medical Center in Oakland from February to April, and recently had been working at the Natividad Medical Center in Salinas. She also helped organize a mobile clinic that served indigent children in Oakland and she was learning Spanish so she could communicate better with her patients.

Spooner, who had maintained part-time as a pediatrician at the Contra Costa Regional Medical Center in Oakland from February to April, and recently had been working at the Natividad Medical Center in Salinas. She also helped organize a mobile clinic that served indigent children in Oakland and she was learning Spanish so she could communicate better with her patients.

Spooner, who had maintained part-time as a pediatrician at the Contra Costa Regional Medical Center in Oakland from February to April, and recently had been working at the Natividad Medical Center in Salinas. She also helped organize a mobile clinic that served indigent children in Oakland and she was learning Spanish so she could communicate better with her patients.

Spooner, who had maintained part-time as a pediatrician at the Contra Costa Regional Medical Center in Oakland from February to April, and recently had been working at the Natividad Medical Center in Salinas. She also helped organize a mobile clinic that served indigent children in Oakland and she was learning Spanish so she could communicate better with her patients.

Spooner, who had maintained part-time as a pediatrician at the Contra Costa Regional Medical Center in Oakland from February to April, and recently had been working at the Natividad Medical Center in Salinas. She also helped organize a mobile clinic that served indigent children in Oakland and she was learning Spanish so she could communicate better with her patients.

Spooner, who had maintained part-time as a pediatrician at the Contra Costa Regional Medical Center in Oakland from February to April, and recently had been working at the Natividad Medical Center in Salinas. She also helped organize a mobile clinic that served indigent children in Oakland and she was learning Spanish so she could communicate better with her patients.