Dear Academy Fellow:

In order to fulfill the admission requirements of AAP Bylaws, you are requested to:

Carefully review the following list of new applicants for Academy admission. Petty your reactions directly to your district chairman (whose name and address is listed at the end of this list).

In submitting these names of board-certified pediatrics, it is understood that you academically and professionally recommend them. Corresponding requests are handled on legal and ethical situations of which you might have personal knowledge.

Send any comments on the following list of new applicants to your district chairman by December 15.

ACQIP Exercise I: Vaccine Storage

ACQIP, the American Academy of Pediatrics new Ambulatory Care Quality Improvement Program, launched its first exercise in September for 2,000 pediatrics. Pilot tested for two years in 170 pediatrics' offices in three states, ACQIP is modeled after the continuous quality improvement (CQI) concept that has been implemented successfully in HMOs, hospitals, and physician's offices. ACQIP applies the CQI concept to pediatrics' offices. The program is designed to assist pediatrician subscribers in evaluating their practices by comparing themselves with their peers nationally and in similar practices at the state level.

Each quarter, participating pediatricians are sent an exercise to be completed by the physician or his/her staff. Exercises are returned confidentially to the Academy so that individuals and summary group information can be generated for participants. Charts and graphs and a brief written report on the variation in responses are provided, along with a set of "Quality Pointers" addressing the area of practice dealt with in the exercise and extra resources. The Academy's Committee on Practice and Ambulatory Medicine (COPAM), Don Berwick, M.D., FAAP, and Richard Saphir, M.D., FAAP, serve as ACQIP's expert educational and technical committee.

This year's theme is immunizations. The first exercise is vaccine storage, followed by immunization and medical recordkeeping, and patient satisfaction.

Anyone wishing further information on ACQIP can contact Robert H. Sebring, PhD, at the Academy (708/981-6784).

Special Fellowship Program for Residents

Academy of Child Nutrition

The Association of Medical School Pediatric Departments (AMSPED) invites applications for support of basic research training for young physicians pursuing academic careers. The Pediatric Special Fellowship Development Program, is funded by a consortium of the National Institutes of Health, and the American Academy of Pediatrics, to the Children's Research Foundation, The Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, The DiGeorge Syndrome Foundation, The Foundation for the Childrens Hospital, The March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation, The Pediatric AIDS Foundation, and The Johnson & Johnson Institute for Pediatric Services. The program is open to pediatric residency years of pediatric residency training who wish to spend at least two years in basic science departments acquiring research skills and encouraged to apply. Candidates with an M.D. degree do not qualify for this program. Applicants must be U.S. citizens or permanent residents of the U.S. or Canadian citizens. Candidates must be nominated by the chairperson of the medical school pediatrics department in which residency takes place. Fellows receive a stipend and research support for two years of basic-science department's outstanding research environment in any field of pediatrics or basic science. The deadline for applications is February 1, 1993. For application information, application form, and direction of selection in a training site, contact: Monica S. Freeman, MD, FRCPC, Pediatric Nutrition Fellow, Department of Pediatrics, University of California, 20754 143, San Francisco, CA 94143-0922. Phone: 415-476-5625

AAP Practitioner Research Award

The Practitioner Research Award was established to provide support to a full-time practitioner, responsible for a major advance in pediatrics. With this notice we are inviting the nominations of candidates for the Practitioner Research Award. We will present this award at the October 1993 Annual Meeting of the AAP. The Practitioner Research award includes an honorarium of $1,500. The award also includes round trip tourist class airfare, two days lodging, plus all actual expenses incident to attending the meeting. Criteria for receipt of the award are as follows:

• The candidate should have spent at least 60% of his/her time in patient care in a non-academic practice at the time of the award.

• Research must be done in an office setting and priority will be given to general pediatrics.

• The research initiated and conducted by the awardee must have been published in peer-reviewed publications.

• The candidate should be a fellow of the Academy and living when selected.

The award is not intended for a group or a practice but for an individual fellow.

Nominations for the AAP Practitioner Research Award will be solicited up to January 29, 1993. Separate letters should be written for each nomination. The letter should briefly state the work for which the award is being considered, and should include the candidate's curriculum vitae as well as one copy of at least one but no more than five different reprints representing the candidate's work. The emphasis of the award is on quality, not quantity. If a critical paper is in press, a copy of the manuscript should be included. Sponsoring letters are encouraged but not required. These letters should be sent to the Academy, and will be directed to the Academy. Address all nominations to Donna Worthington, Administrative Assistant, Department of Research, American Academy of Pediatrics, 141 Northwest Point Boulevard, Elk Grove Village, Illinois 60007. Following this letter, they will be forwarded to the Academy for the Academy Research Selection Committee.

Please share this announcement with any pediatric department heads and/or other fellows of the Academy. They are in a good position to identify candidates for this award. For further information contact Donna Worthington at 1-800-433-2016.

1993 AAP Nutrition Award

Nominations for the 1993 AAP Nutrition Award are now being solicited. Separate letters should be written for each individual nominated. The letter should contain a description of the nominee's achievements and state clearly the basis for the recommendation, (including references to the literature which describes his/her work). It is requested that the nominee's bibliography be submitted with the nominating letter, together with copies of available reprints. Letters, supporting the nomination (no more than five) are to be solicited and screened by the nominator and forwarded to the attention of Edgar O. Ledbetter, M.D., Director Department of Maternal, Child and Adolescent Health American Academy of Pediatrics 141 Northwest Point Boulevard, PO Box 927, Elk Grove Village, IL 60009-0927.

Please note that the deadline for award nominations is December 14, 1992.

The Academy appreciates your effort to assist in the appropriate selection of a deserving person for this award.

Nutrition Award Stipulations:

The Nutrition Award of the American Academy of Pediatrics was established in 1944. The award is made possible by a grant from the Infant Formula Council.

The Nutrition Award provides an honorarium of $3000 to be awarded under the following stipulations:

1. The award will be made for outstanding achievement in research relating to the nutrition of infants and children.

2. That the award be made for research, which has been completed and publicly reported.

3. That the award be made for research, conducted by residents of the United States and Canada.

4. That the award be made to one individual or for one project.

5. That the award be made for research, which is open to all regardless of age. In fact, it is hoped that younger persons will be considered for the award. No current member of the Committee on Nutrition shall be eligible for the award.

The Nutrition Award also includes round trip tourist class airfare as well as two days lodging at $150 per diem for the recipient and another person of his/hers choice to attend the Annual Meeting of the Academy. The selection of the Award recipient is made by the Committee on Nutrition of the American Academy of Pediatrics, and is presented at the Annual Meeting of the Academy.
